

Reimer

Sabine Dinslage, Sophia Thubauville (eds.)

Seeking out wise old men

Six decades of Ethiopian Studies at the Frobenius Institute revisited

Cultural Studies/Studien zur Kulturkunde, vol. 131

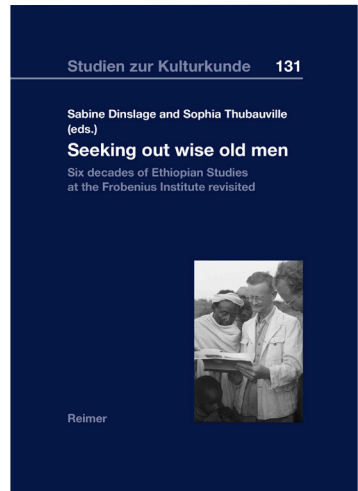

From 1935 to 1992, the Frobenius Institute focused on studies in southern Ethiopia. The results of its empirical research are not only of ethnographic, but also historical value since the work was conducted before the Christian proselytization of the local population and the ascendance of the socialist DERG regime. The anthropologists of the Frobenius Institute were among the few researchers to have documented South Ethiopia's cultural diversity before this change. This publication provides a critical look at the resulting ethnographic studies and renders an overview of Ethiopian studies and the political situation in Ethiopia during those sixty years.

The editors

Sabine Dinslage has been employed as a senior research fellow at the Frobenius Institute, Goethe University Frankfurt. Sophia Thubauville is a researcher and head of the library at the Frobenius Institute, Goethe University Frankfurt.

The authors

Jon Abbink, Lij Asfa-Wossen Asserate, Data Dea Barata, Ulrich Braukämper, Dirk Bustorf, Sabine Dinslage, Susanne Epple, Kansite Gellebo, Kim Glück, Itsushi Kawase, Richard Kuba, Herbert Lewis, Ambaye Ogato, Getachew Senishaw, Sophia Thubauville

320 pages | 139 black and white illustrations
17 × 24 cm, paperback
39,00 € [D]
ISBN 978-3-496-01587-1